Arnall Ousted From Capitol; Governors Continue Campaigns

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 17—Ellis Arnall today announced he was moving his "governor's office" temporarily to a downtown office building. Arnall's move came as forces of Herman Talmadge, elected governor by the general assembly early Wednesday, took over the desk under the capitol dome that Arnall used yesterday when he was barred from the suite of offices heretofore used by the chief executive.

NORWAY WANTS ALLIED BACKING

U. S., Britain Informed No Spitsbergen Change Due Without Approval

By International News Service
The Norwegian government today proffered assurance to the United States and Britain that they will be consulted concerning the Russian proposal to assume joint responsibility with Norway in fortifying the strategic Spitsbergen islands.

The Norwegian foreign office, in a clarifying statement, stated no change in the 1920 treaty which established sole Norwegian sovereignty and prohibited militarization of the Arctic archipelago would be considered without agreement of all the nations which signed the treaty.

In addition to the United States and Britain, the other signatory powers are France, Sweden, Denmark and Holland.

The foreign office hinted the treaty article prohibiting fortifications might be revised or deleted to allow military use of Spitsbergen as a link between the allied powers in a universal security arrangement.

Formation of a new coalition French government began today as major party leaders consulted with Socialist Vincent Auriol, newly elected president of the fourth French government.

The resignations of Premier Leon Blum and his all-Socialist interim cabinet cleared the way for the resumption of an all-party government in France.

In French Indo-China, American, British and Chinese consuls in Hanoi, the embattled capital city, were reported to have appealed in vain for the release of more than 400 civilian hostages held by Viet Nam forces. While declining to free the prisoners, the native government assured the three consulates that the hostages were being treated well.

A back-to-work movement was slowly getting underway in London today after settlement of the 32-day trucking labor dispute. Most of the 59,000 truckmen, stevedores and food handlers who quit their jobs when the government called on army troops to move and distribute food to hungry Britons were expected to be back on the job by Saturday.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Our war taxes on "luxuries" such as electric light bulbs are to be continued in these piping days of non-hostilities.

But so far our legislators haven't gotten around to taxing bachelors $3 a head as now proposed in Argentina. Every bachelor I know says that's one more reason to dislike Argentina.

The theory in Argentina is that if one man pays two dollars for a marriage license another should be willing to pay three dollars for his freedom. The idea is to equalize license and liberty.

Argentina intends to subsidize marriage. Every happy laughing couple will receive $625 from the government.

That's to keep them happy and laughing until they get down to discussing what they're going to do with the money.

It isn't much, but China relief just paid $120,000 for a home for its administrator. Even in Chinese dollars that's a lot of rice.

5,000 Slated To Lose State Jobs

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—On instructions from Governor Herbert, the state civil service commission scheduled examinations today to eliminate some 5,000 of 12,000 provisional employees on the state payroll.

The first examinations, to be held Feb. 27, Feb. 28 and March 1, will be for liquor department inspectors and for store managers, clerks and cashiers. Commission Chairman Carl Smith said the examinations will be held in Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, Canton, Akron, Athens and probably "one or two other cities."

The liquor examinations will affect 937 provisional employees in the four classifications. Herbert had asked the commission to pay particular attention to the liquor department.

Smith said that clerical examinations would be given in April for all state departments affecting 1,900 provisional employees. Several days in June will be given over to examinations for 1,307 posts now held by provisionals in the bureau of unemployment compensation.

The cost of the expanded program—first since the war moratorium—was placed by Smith at approximately $50,000. Only $12,500 is provided in the partial appropriation bill for the first six months of this year, but Smith said he would ask additional funds. Applications for the examinations, Smith said, may be obtained at most county auditor's offices and offices of the Ohio employment service within the next two weeks.

The governor had said he was "requesting" the civil service commission "to proceed as rapidly as possible with the resumption of civil service examinations," which were suspended during the war.

During the war period, "provisionals"—employees appointed without taking a competitive examination—were named to fill vacancies.

Herbert requested that the enforcement division of the liquor department receive first attention "because of the large number of provisionals there." He said provisional inspectors numbered about 135, of whom 75 were appointed in the last two years.

CABINET WOULD BE REDUCED TO 9 WITH MERGER

Details Of Truman Proposal Explained At Capital News Conference

CONGRESS TO STUDY PLAN

No Immediate Savings Seen By Combining Direction Of Army And Navy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—President Truman's plan for merger of the armed forces will reduce the present cabinet from 10 to nine members by combining the War and Navy departments into a secretaryship for national defense.

The cabinet offices of secretary of war and navy will be abolished, if congress approves the merger plan.

This was disclosed today by the White House in a full dress conference participated in by the present chiefs of the Army and Navy. The conference was called to clarify the compromise merger plan announced last night.

It also developed that the heralded "unification" of the Army and Navy is in reality a reorganization plan which unifies and coordinates armed services command at the top level.

Under this plan the Army and Navy are to be maintained as separate and autonomous units together with a new and independent air force.

New Defense Secretary

The plan calls for a new secretary for national defense who will have civilian status, just as do all other members of the president's cabinet. There will be a secretary of the Army, secretary of the Navy, and a new secretary of the air—the air force attaining separate and equal rank with the land and sea forces.

These three secretaries, the White House disclosed, will not have cabinet rank, but will be free to take their problems up directly with the President without recourse necessarily to the secretary of national defense.

Statements of War and Navy department officials at the White House conference also disclosed that no immediate economies or budget savings in support of the armed forces can be expected.

This was in direct contradiction of earlier claims that "billions of dollars" would be saved by unification of the services.

'Brass Hats' Present

The conference was attended by Secretary of War Forrestal, Secretary of Navy Forrestal, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff, Vice Admiral Sherman, and Maj. Gen. Lauris Norstad.

The chiefs of the armed forces each made brief statements approving the compromise plan.

Secretary Patterson said: "The war department will give whole-hearted support. The plan is sound and workable and preserves local autonomy in the three branches."

Gen. Eisenhower then said that from the day the past war began, and all through it, he had "nothing to say" (Continued on Page Two)

U. S. SOLDIERS IN KOREA AREA ARE ALERTED

SEOUL, Jan. 17—United States Army forces in southern Korea were alerted today in connection with mass demonstrations reportedly planned against the occupied nation's "trusteeship" status.

Usually reliable sources said the demonstrations were ordered by extreme rightist elements and scheduled to start tomorrow.

Some informants said, however, that the starting date for the demonstrations would be put off until early March.

The American occupation commander, Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, gave official credence to the reports of planned demonstrations in a special statement.

Creedon Says Industry With Government Help Can Solve Problem

BY FRANK R. CREEDON
National Housing Expediter
(Written Expressly For International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—The homebuilding industry and the government, working together, face an obligation in 1947 of meeting an acute need for housing, particularly among veterans. A large volume of housing—above all, rental housing—is required to carry out the program defined by President Truman on December 14.

The housing program for this year is fashioned toward that end. It is designed as a partnership of government and private industry.

The senior partner is the industry, for it must provide the homes. The government's function is to assist the industry to do a maximum job.

Policies Changed

In order to maintain the momentum developed in materials production and homebuilding in 1946, we are adapting our policies to the conditions of 1947. Where better tools are needed, better tools are being provided, as in the field of rental housing. Where controls that were required last year are no longer essential, they are being eased or removed.

All of the steps being taken are directed toward getting more homes and apartments built in less time. Anything we can do to speed the completion of homes and to shorten the building period will reduce construction costs and will aid veterans and others who need places to live.

More Materials

The outlook is good for a record volume of homebuilding this year. Materials production is vastly improved over a year ago. It is still, however, a vital problem, and the government will not relax its efforts to keep production moving upward. Some materials, such as millwork, hardwood flooring, cast

1,786 PICKAWAY DOGS HAVE NEW 1947 LICENSES

Total of 1,786 of the new 1947 dog license tags had been sold up to noon Friday at the office of Pickaway County Auditor Forrest Short.

The auditor pointed out that Monday is the deadline for the purchase of dog licenses. After Monday a penalty of $1 for delinquency will be added to the price of the tag. Under state law every dog over the age of 3 months is required to be licensed. The price is $1 for male canines, $1 for spayed females, and $3 for females. Cost of a kennel license is $10.

For the convenience of dog owners, Auditor Short said, application may be made by mail. Each applicant must remit the price of the tag along with a description of the dog and a stamped return envelope.

The auditor said 3,003 dog tags were issued in 1946.

BOOSTS IN SUGAR PRICE APPROVED

OTC Grants Increase Which Will Be About Cent On Five Pounds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—The government today granted sugar price increases which will boost the retail cost of sugar by about one cent per five pound package.

Today's action by the office of temporary controls is effective at midnight.

It grants maximum increases of 18.5 cents a hundred pounds for raw cane sugar and 20 cents a hundred pounds for refined sugar. The retail increase will go into effect when stores receive their first shipments of sugar produced under the new prices.

These increases, OTC said, are necessitated by provisions of the sugar buying agreement with the Cuban government covering the 1946 and 1947 crops of Cuban sugar.

ARMY RECRUITS BEING SIGNED UP FASTER NOW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Maj. Gen. St. Clair Streett, the Army's new recruiting chief, disclosed today that the number of volunteers has picked up 30 per cent since the first of this year.

Streett said that previously enlistments had been running from between four to five thousand a week. The increase is expected to bring total enlistments for this month to 25,000.

Between thirty-five and forty thousand enlistments are needed monthly, however, to place the Army on an all-volunteer basis. Set strength for July 1 is 1,070,000 officers and men.

It is still undecided whether a draft call will be issued for February and March or whether the Army will have to seek extension of selective service past its March 31 expiration date to meet the goal, matters on which Streett refused to comment.

UNION, C OF C DELEGATES GIVE PORTAL VIEWS

Confiscation Of American Business Enterprises Said Threatened

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—CIO and AFL union spokesmen warned congress today that its portal pay bills go far beyond that issue and "undermine" the entire structure of the fair labor standards act.

John Abt, counsel for the CIO-Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, told a senate judiciary subcommittee that two bills now before it will place "an intolerable burden upon the great majority of honest employers" as well as damage employee rights.

Abt gave his views after the committee heard Walter J. Mason, AFL legislative representative, urge that the portal-to-portal pay suits not be allowed to provide an "excuse" for "emasculating" of the fair labor standards act.

Abt pointed out that the clothing industry and its workers have no direct interest in the portal-to-portal suits but has a vital interest in preserving the act.

Mason said portal pay claims were "inconsistent with mutual rights and responsibilities" of labor and management. But he condemned both the Wiley and Capehart bills now under consideration. He said:

"Either bill would place American workers back several generations to the time when they were paid by the day regardless of the number of hours they worked."

Earlier, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce urged "prompt relief" from the portal suits which it said threaten confiscation of many American business enterprises.

Thomas W. Howard, manager of the U. S. Chamber's manufacture department, declared that congress should consider "liabilities" arising from legal decisions other than that in the portal case.

WARM WEEKEND PREDICTED FOR OHIO RESIDENTS

By International News Service
Mercury dropped below freezing in Ohio today for the first time in several days, but no severe cold was sighted by weather bureau forecasters before the middle of next week.

Threat of floods in the southern part of the state diminished as rain gave way to clear skies. Several highways, however, were blocked by high water. According to the department of highways these were route 144 in Athens county and route 146 in Guernsey county.

Rising temperatures with some cloudiness were predicted for tomorrow.

The extended forecast into next Wednesday follows:
Temperatures will average 5 to 10 degrees above normal for the period, warmer Sunday; becoming colder by Wednesday. Precipitation will average less than one-quarter inch.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN ROOMING HOUSE FIRE

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 17—Three persons perished and another was injured seriously today when fire swept the top-floor of the three-story Graystone rooming house and hotel in the central section of Watertown. Five others are listed as missing.

Police said there were about 25 roomers in the old building when the fire broke out at 1:25 a. m. (est) but that most managed to escape. The fire, which wrecked the third floor, was not brought under control until 6 a. m.

U. S. EXPECTED TO WIN DELAY

UN Delegates Confused By Austin's Proposal To Postpone Action

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 17—The United States will push its case before the security council today for postponement of disarmament talks until Feb. 4.

The reversal of policy from top speed to a go-slow demand put to the council by Warren A. Austin in his initial appearance injected an atmosphere of confusion into agenda procedure.

American delegation spokesmen are convinced that the delay asked by Austin will be granted, probably by a narrow majority.

The situation facing the 11 members of the international body today was made all the more complicated by the prolonged deadlock on priority for arms limitation and atomic control between the United States and Soviet Russia.

In the last two meetings of the council dealing with the disarmament agenda, neither Russia nor America yielded ground. All effort to solve the deadlock through compromise failed.

Although the immediate issue confronting the council at today's session is the question of adopting or rejecting the United States resolution for a delay, the key problem still remains the disarmament dispute between the two major powers at the shiny horseshoe table.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Gromyko has served notice in several statements before the council that Russia insists on a general approach to disarmament in conjunction with the general assembly's resolution.

TRIPPI SIGNS $100,000 PACT WITH CARDINALS

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—Charlie Trippi, a 24-year-old product of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal fields, capped a truly American success story today when he signed the most-lavish professional football contract ever drafted—a $100,000 salary guarantee for four years with the Chicago Cardinals.

The pact was signed by the dark-haired University of Georgia All-American and by Charles Bidwill, Cardinal owner, in a swank aura of popping flashbulbs, radio broadcasts and plush-line hotel appointments.

SIX ARE KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH IN CALIFORNIA

'Owl' Hits Broken Rail; Six Cars Overturned, Six Others Derailed

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Jan. 17—Six persons were killed today and 58 injured when the Southern Pacific Owl hit a broken rail, overturning six cars and derailling six others which remained upright.

Of the injured, 15 were hospitalized at Kern general hospital with serious injuries, 40 were treated at the same hospital and dismissed and three others were treated at Mercy hospital and released.

All those injured were passengers.

The 15-car train carried 200 passengers.

Cars overturned included four coaches, one tourist sleeper and an express car.

Sheriff's Deputy Jack Keithley reported he counted six bodies strewn in the wreckage and that more dead undoubtedly lay under five overturned coaches. Keithley estimated the death toll might rise as high as 15.

A baby's leg was severed in the crash and it was feared the infant would not survive.

The Owl hit a broken track at Lerdo. The Owl, it was pointed out, hits speeds of 60 and 70 miles an hour in the flat country near Lerdo.

Screams of the injured and flickering light of wrecking torches and rescue lanterns created an eerie touch.

Overtaxed rescue crews were forced to leave bodies of the dead at the scene in order to save as many of the injured as possible.

GOP Slated To Continue Luxury Tax

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—The house ways and means committee unanimously approved a bill today to continue indefinitely the high wartime excise taxes on such items as jewelry, furs and liquor.

Rep. Knutson (R) Minn., chairman of the committee, announced he would seek house approval of the measure early next week.

Speedy action on the measure was forecast by the committee's Republican majority "unanimously" approving the continuation.

Thus, it appeared that the continuation, urged by President Truman, might well become the first measure to obtain approval by the Republican-controlled house.

The taxes are due to expire July 1. President Truman sought continuation of the taxes in order to provide additional revenue with which to make a payment on the national debt.

Republicans and Democrats in the house saw the move, however, as an effort on the part of the majority to provide greater revenue in order to carry through promises to reduce individual taxes by 20 percent.

The bill introduced by Rep. Grant (R) Ind. provides for a continuation of the taxes for an indefinite period. The July 1 expiration of the high taxes became effective automatically when President Truman declared the "end of hostilities," on Dec. 31, last.

5,000 Slated To Lose State Jobs

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—On instructions from Governor Herbert, the state civil service commission scheduled examinations today to eliminate some 5,000 of 12,000 provisional employees on the state payroll.

The first examinations, to be held Feb. 27, Feb. 28 and March 1, will be for liquor department inspectors and for store managers, clerks and cashiers. Commission Chairman Carl Smith said the examinations will be held in Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, Canton, Akron, Athens and probably "one or two other cities."

The liquor examinations will affect 937 provisional employees in the four classifications. Herbert had asked the commission to pay particular attention to the liquor department.

CONGRESS TO STUDY PLAN

No Immediate Savings Seen By Combining Direction Of Army And Navy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—President Truman's plan for merger of the armed forces will reduce the present cabinet from 10 to nine members by combining the War and Navy departments into a secretariatship for national defense.

The cabinet offices of secretary of war and navy will be abolished, if congress approves the merger plan.

This was disclosed today by the White House in a full dress conference participated in by the present chiefs of the Army and Navy. The conference was called to clarify the compromise merger plan announced last night.

It also developed that the heretofore "unification" of the Army and Navy is in reality a reorganization plan which unifies and coordinates armed services command at the top level.

BOOSTS IN SUGAR PRICE APPROVED

OTC Grants Increase Which Will Be About Cent On Five Pounds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—The government today granted sugar price increases which will boost the retail cost of sugar by about one cent per five pound package.

UNION, C OF C DELEGATES GIVE PORTAL VIEWS

Confiscation Of American Business Enterprises Said Threatened

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—CIO and AFL union spokesmen warned congress today that its portal pay bills go far beyond that issue and "undermine" the entire structure of the fair labor standards act.

John Abt, counsel for the CIO-Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, told a senate judiciary subcommittee that two bills now before it will place "an intolerable burden upon the great majority of honest employers" as well as damage employe rights.

Abt gave his views after the committee heard Walter J. Mason, AFL legislative representative, urge that the portal-to-portal pay suits not be allowed to provide an "excuse" for "emasculating" of the fair labor standards act.

Abt pointed out that the clothing industry and its workers have no direct interest in the portal-to-portal suits but has a vital interest in preserving the act.

Mason said portal pay claims were "inconsistent with mutual rights and responsibilities" of labor and management. But he condemned both the Wiley and Capehart bills now under consideration. He said:

"Either bill would place American workers back several generations to the time when they were paid by the day regardless of the number of hours they worked."

Earlier, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce urged "prompt relief" from the portal suits which it said threaten confiscation of many American business enterprises.

Thomas W. Howard, manager of the U. S. Chamber's manufacture department, declared that congress should consider "liabilities" arising from legal decisions other than that in the portal case.

WARM WEEKEND PREDICTED FOR OHIO RESIDENTS

By International News Service
Mercury dropped below freezing in Ohio today for the first time in several days, but no severe cold was sighted by weather bureau forecasters before the middle of next week.

Threat of floods in the southern part of the state diminished as rain gave way to clear skies. Several highways, however, were blocked by high water. According to the department of highways these were route 144 in Athens county and route 146 in Guernsey county.

Rising temperatures with some cloudiness were predicted for tomorrow.

The extended forecast into next Wednesday follows:
Temperatures will average 5 to 10 degrees above normal for the period, warmer Sunday; becoming colder by Wednesday. Precipitation will average less than one-quarter inch.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN ROOMING HOUSE FIRE

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 17—Three persons perished and another was injured seriously today when fire swept the top-floor of the three-story Graystone rooming house and hotel in the central section of Watertown. Five others are listed as missing.

Police said there were about 25 roomers in the old building when the fire broke out at 1:25 a. m. (est) but that most managed to escape. The fire, which wrecked the third floor, was not brought under control until 6 a. m.

U. S. EXPECTED TO WIN DELAY

UN Delegates Confused By Austin's Proposal To Postpone Action

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 17—The United States will push its case before the security council today for postponement of disarmament talks until Feb. 4.

The reversal of policy from top speed to a go-slow demand put to the council by Warren A. Austin in his initial appearance injected an atmosphere of confusion into agenda procedure.

American delegation spokesmen are convinced that the delay asked by Austin will be granted, probably by a narrow majority.

The situation facing the 11 members of the international body today was made all the more complicated by the prolonged deadlock on priority for arms limitation and atomic control between the United States and Soviet Russia.

In the last two meetings of the council dealing with the disarmament agenda, neither Russia nor America yielded ground. All effort to solve the deadlock through compromise failed.

Although the immediate issue confronting the council at today's session is the question of adopting or rejecting the United States resolution for a delay, the key problem still remains the disarmament dispute between the two major powers at the shiny horseshoe table.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Gromyko has served notice in several statements before the council that Russia insists on a general approach to disarmament in conjunction with the general assembly's resolution.

TRIPPI SIGNS $100,000 PACT WITH CARDINALS

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—Charlie Trippi, a 24-year-old product of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal fields, capped a truly American success story today when he signed the most-lavish professional football contract ever drafted—a $100,000 salary guarantee for four years with the Chicago Cardinals.

The pact was signed by the dark-haired University of Georgia All-American and by Charles Bidwill, Cardinal owner, in a swank aura of popping flashbulbs, radio broadcasts and plush-line hotel appointments.

SIX ARE KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH IN CALIFORNIA

'Owl' Hits Broken Rail; Six Cars Overturned, Six Others Derailed

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Jan. 17—Six persons were killed today and 58 injured when the Southern Pacific Owl hit a broken rail, overturning six cars and derailing six others which remained upright.

Of the injured, 15 were hospitalized at Kern general hospital with serious injuries, 40 were treated at the same hospital and dismissed and three others were treated at Mercy hospital and released.

All those injured were passengers. The 15-car train carried 200 passengers.

Cars overturned included four coaches, one tourist sleeper and an express car.

Sheriff's Deputy Jack Keithley reported he counted six bodies strewn in the wreckage and that more dead undoubtedly lay under five overturned coaches. Keithley estimated the death toll might rise as high as 15.

A baby's leg was severed in the crash and it was feared the infant would not survive.

The Owl hit a broken track at Lerdo. The Owl, it was pointed out, hits speeds of 60 and 70 miles an hour in the flat country near Lerdo.

Screams of the injured and flickering light of wrecking torches and rescue lanterns created an eerie touch.

Overtaxed rescue crews were forced to leave bodies of the dead at the scene in order to save as many of the injured as possible.

GOP Slated To Continue Luxury Tax

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—The house ways and means committee unanimously approved a bill today to continue indefinitely the high wartime excise taxes on such items as jewelry, furs and liquor.

Rep. Knutson (R) Minn., chairman of the committee, announced he would seek house approval of the measure early next week.

Speedy action on the measure was forecast by the committee's Republican majority "unanimously" approving the continuation.

Thus, it appeared that the continuation, urged by President Truman, might well become the first measure to obtain approval by the Republican-controlled house.

The taxes are due to expire July 1. President Truman sought continuation of the taxes in order to provide additional revenue with which to make a payment on the national debt.

Republicans and Democrats in the house saw the move, however, as an effort on the part of the majority to provide greater revenue in order to carry through promises to reduce individual taxes by 20 percent.

The bill introduced by Rep. Grant (R) Ind. provides for a continuation of the taxes for an indefinite period. The July 1 expiration of the high taxes became effective automatically when President Truman declared the "end of hostilities" on Dec. 31, last.

MAN, 88, BOUND TO GRAND JURY FOR 19TH TIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Theodore Grant, 88, withered and balding, was held in jail today for grand jury action on a charge of burglary.

It was no new experience for Grant who has been in court at least 19 times and served a total of 29 years and six months in prison.

Magistrate Francis X. Glaccone bound him over to the grand jury after detectives had testified Grant had stolen $1,000 worth of novelties and perfume. Grant said: "I found the stuff in the hall. I figured I would bring it up stairs. My room smells so bad I thought I would spray some of the perfume around. I always was a man for pretty smells."

Under questioning by Magistrate Glaccone, Grant said he had first been convicted in 1899.

Grant was really indignant about only one sentence he had received. He said:

"They gave me three days for sitting in the subway in 1940. I don't like that on my record."

CLARK REVEALS INDICTMENT OF 'RED' ORGANIZER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Attorney General Clark today announced the indictment of Carl Aldo Marzani, alleged New York Communist organizer, on charges of perpetrating a fraud on the government in obtaining military status and employment in the super-secret office of strategic services.

The indictment was returned by a District of Columbia grand jury. Clark said Marzani, allegedly known in the Communist party as "Tony Whales," was employed by the office of strategic services as an "economic editor" in 1942.

Marzani was declared to have assumed military status in October, 1943, holding it until September, 1945.

FARMER ACCUSED OF KILLING 3 HUNTING DOGS

Legal action may be instituted, it was learned Friday, against Perry Stout, Scioto township farmer who allegedly shot and killed three valuable hunting dogs owned by Ed Hudson and Ray Ames, both of Commercial Point.

In filing a complaint with Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Thursday afternoon, Hudson and Ames indicated they would confer with County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins relative to possible procedure against Stout.

Slaying of the three dogs, valued at a total of $650 by the owners, occurred shortly before midnight Wednesday, during the final hour of the coon-hunting season.

Investigating the complaint, Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontious talked with Stout at the latter's farm near Commercial Point. The deputy said Stout claimed he was within his legal rights when he shot and killed the canine trio. Although Stout said he feared the animals would harm his sheep, Deputy Pontious asserted that the sheep were not in proximity to the area where the dogs were killed.

The deputy sheriff said investigation had disclosed that Hudson and Ames were coon hunting, not on the Stout property, that the dogs were chasing a coon, and that the quarry led two of the dogs onto the front yard of the Stout farm home. Apparently having awaited the arrival of the canines on his ground Stout began shooting. Deputy Pontious said that one of the dogs appeared to have been on a township road when it was killed. Two of the dogs were owned by Hudson who valued them at $250 and $200. The third canine, owned by Ames, was valued at $200.

LITTLE AMERICA CAMP SITE OF PAST LOCATED

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MOUNT OLYMPUS, IN ANTARCTICA, Jan. 17—The five-year-old Little America camp site of the previous historic Byrd expedition to the South Pole was re-discovered today.

All but obliterated by shifting mountains of ice, the world famous landmark was spotted from the air by Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen of the central command force.

Cruzen recognized traces of the site when he flew over Little America in a helicopter, seeking suitable new camp and airstrip sites. His Antarctic exploration command was anchored at the entrance to the Bay of Whales.

ARNALL OUSTED FROM CAPITOL

do with it. If the courts have authority to determine who was governor they could likewise determine who was a member of the general assembly.

"I think the suit was filed solely in an attempt to create more confusion."

Appointees of young Talmadge, assembly-elected governor, held the state's purse strings and military commands.

But Arnall refused to concede defeat in one of the most weird gubernatorial battles in the nation's history.

The nationally recognized southern liberal did not sleep in the executive mansion last night. Talmadge did.

He could not drive up to the capitol in the official limousine. Talmadge had possession of those, too.

And, in fact, he had no office space. Talmadge occupied the executive suite.

Arnall learned yesterday, that: 1. M. E. Thompson, lieutenant governor-elect, apparently had deserted him in the thick of the fight.

2. The general assembly definitely had upheld the Talmadge claims more decisively than ever.

Faced by a senate confirmation of a Talmadge appointee to his previous job as revenue commissioner, Thompson announced he would relinquish the post, take the oath of lieutenant governor, and presumably be content to serve in that capacity and preside henceforth over the senate.

The legislature, meanwhile, adjourned for the week-end. But Arnall could hold only a slight hope that the lawmakers might change their views after conferring with their constituency. The die apparently has been cast as far as the solons are concerned.

The upper chamber, in executive session, confirmed the appointments of Marvin Griffin, adjutant general, Charles Redwine, state revenue commissioner, and Jim Gillis, highway commissioner.

In the house, as in the senate, the Talmadge strength continued to show itself. The house voted down, 114 to 65, a resolution to adjourn until March 31, pending a decision by the state supreme court on Arnall's indictment petition designed to oust Talmadge.

Commenting on Arnall's contention that he still is governor, Rep. Robert Elliott declared:

"Now, if you really want to have some fun, I tell you what we can do. After we've passed the bill establishing the white primary, we'll take it down and let Herman sign it. It will then become law.

"Then, just for fun, we'll take it around and let Arnall sign it. If he refuses to sign it, we'll know where he stands. If he does sign it, the northern press, the Negroes and Henry Wallace will know where he stands."

which directly or indirectly employ any person or persons, firm, corporation or association to promote, advocate, amend or oppose in any manner any matter pending or that might legally come before the general assembly or either house thereof, or a committee of the general assembly or either house thereof, shall within one week from the date of such employment furnish in a signed statement to the secretary of state the following information, to-wit: . . .

The almost all-inclusive law then goes on to outline the procedure for registration. A later section sets out the penalty. Hummel pointed out.

Hummel cited the fact that any local or county party leader who attempted to advise his representative, any employee of any local business, or almost any businessman who asked his representative to vote on a measure might be charged with lobbying.

Hummel stated that if any complaints of lobbying by any such unregistered person were made to his office, he would be required to turn the matter over to the attorney general for prosecution. However, no one—at least recently—has ever been accused under the law.

"But on investigation of the wording of the law," Hummel continued, "it seems to be very indefinite. It certainly would enable this office to better define its duties under the terms of the lobbying law if the statute were amended."

"We could do a far better job if the law were re-written and more clearly defined as to what constitutes lobbying and who is required to register. An amended law might permit the secretary of state to end illegal lobbying."

iron soil pipe and bathtubs, are still in very short supply.

The government is therefore continuing its production aids wherever they are needed and effective. These include premium payments, allocations of raw materials to housing uses, and priorities to manufacturers to obtain materials and equipment for housing items.

Because materials are still short of total demand, the government must also continue to limit the volume of non-residential construction. An increase in the authorized rate for such construction from thirty five million to fifty million dollars a week was recently granted, although the rate is still far below the average for 1946.

The increase was necessary to meet several conditions: construction costs have risen, and the need for community facilities, such as stores and schools, have grown as a result of the expansion in homebuilding. Furthermore, non-housing construction on farms is now included in the weekly goal instead of being separately authorized, and it is necessary also to permit certain types of heavy construction which have little impact on housing in areas where unemployment has begun to develop in heavy construction trades.

The complex priority system, instituted when materials were in very short supply, has been succeeded by a simple permit system, relieving both government and business of burdensome regulations.

As the year progresses and national problems are overcome, the role of the federal government in the housing emergency can be expected to lessen. At the same time, however, the responsibility of private industry and the community will become greater. Many of the difficulties that lie ahead, such as an adequate supply of labor to meet rising construction demands, development of new and well-planned sites, and provision of adequate community facilities, can be most successfully met by concerted, cooperative community and industry effort.

Private industry, local communities, and the government, working cooperatively, can and will meet this housing emergency.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. SIPHEY HILDENBRAND

Mrs. Siphey L. Hildenbrand, 86, widow of John Hildenbrand and a resident of Pickaway county for about 30 years, died at 5 p. m. Thursday in her home on Route 1, Circleville in Pickaway township. Death was attributed to complications and followed a serious illness of one day.

Mrs. Hildenbrand was born Sept. 20, 1860 in Vinton county, the daughter of Jacob Cocab and Charity Fry Cocab. Her husband died in 1940. She was a member of the Salem Methodist church at Mead.

Survivors include five daughters, Mrs. Lillie Hinton, Kingston; Mrs. Daisy Cottrill, Frankfort; and Mrs. Mary Schmieder, Mrs. Charity Hurt and Mrs. Pearl White, all of Chillicothe; four sons, Jesse Hildenbrand, at home; John Hildenbrand, Williamsport; Harry Hildenbrand, Kingston; and Donald Hildenbrand, Route 1, Circleville; one sister, Mrs. Anna Brock, Kalamazoo, Mich.; one brother, Frank Cocab, Springfield; and 34 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Sunday at the residence, with the Rev. Leonard W. Mann officiating. Burial will be in the Mt. Pleasant cemetery at Kingston under direction of the Root-Whitell funeral home, Chillicothe. Friends may call at the residence after 10 a. m. Saturday.

tional Association of Manufacturers which warned that other interpretations of the wage-hour law may be more costly to industry than the billions in portal claims.

Howard explained that the chamber is now polling its one million businessman-members on a policy declaration calling for specific changes in the fair labor standards act. He said that declaration carries these major recommendations:

1. Elimination from fair labor standards act coverage operations that are not actually in interstate commerce. Howard said the administration of the law has gone "far afield."

2. A definition of "compensable working time" which would recognize prevailing custom, practice or actual agreement. This would settle whether time spent walking to or preparing for the day's work was to be paid for at regular overtime rates.

3. Discretion for the courts to decide whether an employer has acted in "good faith" and is entitled to having any damages mitigated.

4. Legalize compromise settlements in bona fide disputes under the act. The supreme court has held that overtime wage and double-damage claims cannot legally be compromised by employer and worker.

FARMER ACCUSED OF KILLING 3 HUNTING DOGS

Legal action may be instituted, it was learned Friday, against Perry Stout, Scioto township farmer who allegedly shot and killed three valuable hunting dogs owned by Ed Hudson and Ray Ames, both of Commercial Point.

In filing a complaint with Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Thursday afternoon, Hudson and Ames indicated they would confer with County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins relative to possible procedure against Stout.

Slaying of the three dogs, valued at a total of $650 by the owners, occurred shortly before midnight Wednesday, during the final hour of the coon-hunting season.

Investigating the complaint, Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontius talked with Stout at the latter's farm near Commercial Point. The deputy said Stout claimed he was within his legal rights when he shot and killed the canine trio.

Although Stout said he feared the animals would harm his sheep, Deputy Pontius asserted that the sheep were not in proximity to the area where the dogs were killed.

The deputy sheriff said investigation had disclosed that Hudson and Ames were coon hunting, not on the Stout property, that the dogs were chasing a coon, and that the quarry led two of the dogs onto the front yard of the Stout farm home. Apparently having awaited the arrival of the canines on his ground Stout began shooting.

Deputy Pontius said that one of the dogs appeared to have been on a township road when it was killed. Two of the dogs were owned by Hudson who valued them at $250 and $200. The third canine, owned by Ames, was valued at $200.

LITTLE AMERICA CAMP SITE OF PAST LOCATED

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MOUNT OLYMPUS, IN ANTARCTICA, Jan. 17—The five-year-old Little America camp site of the previous historic Byrd expedition to the South Pole was re-discovered today.

All but obliterated by shifting mountains of ice, the world famous landmark was spotted from the air by Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen of the central command force.

Cruzen recognized traces of the site when he flew over Little America in a helicopter, seeking suitable new camp and airstrip sites. His Antarctic exploration command was anchored at the entrance to the Bay of Whales.

do with it. If the courts have authority to determine who was governor they could likewise determine who was a member of the general assembly.

"I think the suit was filed solely in an attempt to create more confusion."

Appointees of young Talmadge, assembly-elected governor, held the state's purse strings and military commands.

But Arnall refused to concede defeat in one of the most weird gubernatorial battles in the nation's history.

The nationally recognized southern liberal did not sleep in the executive mansion last night. Talmadge did.

He could not drive up to the capitol in the official limousine. Talmadge had possession of those, too.

And, in fact, he had no office space. Talmadge occupied the executive suite.

Arnall learned yesterday, that: 1. M. E. Thompson, lieutenant governor-elect, apparently had deserted him in the thick of the fight.

2. The general assembly definitely held up the Talmadge claims more decisively than ever.

Faced by a senate confirmation of a Talmadge appointee to his previous job as revenue commissioner, Thompson announced he would relinquish the post, take the oath of lieutenant governor, and presumably be content to serve in that capacity and preside henceforth over the senate.

The legislature, meanwhile, adjourned for the week-end. But Arnall could hold only a slight hope that the lawmakers might change their views after conferring with their constituency. The die apparently has been cast as far as the solons are concerned.

The upper chamber, in executive session, confirmed the appointments of Marvin Griffin, adjutant general, Charles Redwine, state revenue commissioner, and Jim Gillis, highway commissioner.

In the house, as in the senate, the Talmadge strength continued to show itself. The house voted down, 114 to 65, a resolution to adjourn until March 31, pending a decision by the state supreme court on Arnall's indictment petition designed to oust Talmadge.

Commenting on Arnall's contention that he still is governor, Rep. Robert Elliott declared:

"Now, if you really want to have some fun, I tell you what we can do. After we've passed the bill establishing the white primary, we'll take it down and let Herman sign it. It will then become law."

"Then, just for fun, we'll take it around and let Arnall sign it. "If he refuses to sign it, we'll know where he stands. If he does sign it, the northern press, the Negroes and Henry Wallace will know where he stands."

SATURDAY LAST DAY

Saturday is the last day of the Pickaway Blue Cross community enrollment. For the convenience of residents of the county, the headquarters in the county engineers office in the Court House will be open until 8 p. m. This will be the last opportunity to enroll in a Blue Cross community enrollment for the next 12 months in Pickaway county. The Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the Pickaway County campaign.

which directly or indirectly employ any person or persons, firm, corporation or association to promote, advocate, amend or oppose in any manner any matter pending or that might legally come before the general assembly or either house thereof, or a committee of the general assembly or either house thereof, shall within one week from the date of such employment furnish in a signed statement to the secretary of state the following information, to-wit: . . .

The almost all-inclusive law then goes on to outline the procedure for registration. A later section sets out the penalty. Hummel pointed out.

Hummel cited the fact that any local or county party leader who attempted to advise his representative, any employee of any local business, or almost any businessman who asked his representative to vote on a measure might be charged with lobbying.

Hummel stated that if any complaints of lobbying by any such unregistered person were made to his office, he would be required to turn the matter over to the attorney general for prosecution. However, no one—at least recently—has ever been accused under the law.

"But on investigation of the wording of the law," Hummel continued, "it seems to be very indefinite. It certainly would enable this office to better define its duties under the terms of the lobbying law if the statute were amended."

"We could do a far better job if the law were re-written and more clearly defined as to what constitutes lobbying and who is required to register. An amended law might permit the secretary of state to end illegal lobbying."

ENJOYING 'GAS' WAR

SHELBY, O., Jan. 17—Shelby citizens enjoyed a price-slashing gasoline war today. All the city's 15 filling stations sold "regular" gas at 15.9 cents a gallon and high test for 17.9. Normal prices are 17.5 and 21.5 cents.

YOUNGSTER RESCUED

CLEVELAND, Jan. 17—A 13-year-old Cleveland boy, Albert Hayes, was a hero today to Leonard Lutch, 5. The older boy saw Leonard fall through ice into a pond yesterday and rushed from his house to rescue the youngster.

EXPEDITER SEES RECORD HOUSE 'BOOM' IN '47

Iron soil pipe and bathtubs, are still in very short supply.

The government is therefore continuing its production aids wherever they are needed and effective. These include premium payments, allocations of raw materials to housing uses, and priorities to manufacturers to obtain materials and equipment for housing items.

Because materials are still short of total demand, the government must also continue to limit the volume of non-residential construction. An increase in the authorized rate for such construction from thirty five million to fifty million dollars a week was recently granted, although the rate is still far below the average for 1946.

The increase was necessary to meet several conditions: construction costs have risen, and the need for community facilities, such as stores and schools, have grown as a result of the expansion in homebuilding. Furthermore, non-housing construction on farms is now included in the weekly goal instead of being separately authorized, and it is necessary also to permit certain types of heavy construction which have little impact on housing in areas where unemployment has begun to develop in heavy construction trades.

The complex priority system, instituted when materials were in very short supply, has been succeeded by a simple permit system, relieving both government and business of burdensome regulations.

As the year progresses and national problems are overcome, the role of the federal government in the housing emergency can be expected to lessen. At the same time, however, the responsibility of private industry and the community will become greater. Many of the difficulties that lie ahead, such as an adequate supply of labor to meet rising construction demands, development of new and well-planned sites, and provision of adequate community facilities, can be most successfully met by concerted, cooperative community and industry effort.

Private industry, local communities, and the government, working cooperatively, can and will meet this housing emergency.

tional Association of Manufacturers which warned that other interpretations of the wage-hour law may be more costly to industry than the billions in portal claims.

Howard explained that the chamber is now polling its one million businessman-members on a policy declaration calling for specific changes in the fair labor standards act. He said that declaration carries these major recommendations:

1. Elimination from fair labor standards act coverage operations that are not actually in interstate commerce. Howard said the administration of the law has gone "far afield."

2. A definition of "compensable working time" which would recognize prevailing custom, practice or actual agreement. This would settle whether time spent walking to or preparing for the day's work was to be paid for at regular or overtime rates.

3. Discretion for the courts to decide whether an employer has acted in "good faith" and is entitled to having any damages mitigated.

4. Legalize compromise settlements in bona fide disputes under the act. The supreme court has held that overtime wage and double-damage claims cannot legally be compromised by employer and worker.

VICTORY FOUR TO SING HERE THIS WEEKEND

Wilmore Seminary Students
To Present Programs
At EUB Services

The "Victory Four" quartet from Asbury Seminary will give concerts this weekend at the Bethlehem Evangelical United Brethren church of Yellowbud, and the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church of Circleville. They will present their first concert at the Yellowbud church on Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock. They will again bring a concert on Sunday evening at Calvary at the 7:30 o'clock hour.

This quartet is composed of four students from Asbury Seminary of Wilmore, Kentucky, who have been doing considerable traveling and singing these past months. Over the Christmas holidays they made a tour which reached into Florida, and have traveled long distances on their weekend concert trips.

The members of the quartet are: first tenor, Kenneth Harper of East St. Louis, Illinois; second tenor, Darrell Taylor of California; baritone, Durlan Dumm of Akron, Ohio, formerly an Evangelical minister in Youngstown, Ohio, who is now completing his seminary work; and Paul Abel, a missionary's son from Tokyo, Japan.

The quartet presents a program of favorite religious numbers, old gospel songs, Negro spirituals and their personal testimonies.

They will give a number of concerts in this area this weekend, being at the Yellowbud E. U. B. church, on Saturday; at Stoutsville Sunday school Sunday morning; at Pontius church for morning worship and at the Calvary E. U. B. church Sunday evening.

The public is invited to all of these concerts.

COVERS ALL
THE FAMILY

You and your family, including all unmarried children under 19, can have Blue Cross hospital care protection for only a few cents a day. Each one may receive as many as 30 days hospital service within a year... the best any hospital can furnish.

SPONSORED BY HOSPITALS

Blue Cross is a co-operative, non-profit, group hospital care plan for paying the hospital bills of its members. It is operated by the hospitals and administered under local management and a board of trustees consisting of Columbus professional and business executives. It provides the best hospital service that can be furnished, for wage and salary earners and their families, at low cost.

WHY YOU NEED
BLUE CROSS

Statistics show that 1 out of every 10 persons go to a hospital each year—9 out of 10 are unable to pay their bills without undue hardships. The need for hospital care usually comes without time to prepare for the expense—accident and illness too often occur unexpectedly. Join Blue Cross and have no worries about a sudden hospital bill. Mail the coupon for information on how you can enroll.

VICTORY FOUR TO SING HERE
THIS WEEKEND

Wilmore Seminary Students
To Present Programs
At EUB Services

The "Victory Four" quartet from Asbury Seminary will give concerts this weekend at the Bethlehem Evangelical United Brethren church of Yellowbud, and the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church of Circleville. They will present their first concert at the Yellowbud church on Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock. They will again bring a concert on Sunday evening at Calvary at the 7:30 o'clock hour.

This quartet is composed of four students from Asbury Seminary of Wilmore, Kentucky, who have been doing considerable traveling and singing these past months. Over the Christmas holidays they made a tour which reached into Florida, and have traveled long distances on their weekend concert trips.

The members of the quartet are: first tenor, Kenneth Harper of East St. Louis, Illinois; second tenor, Darrell Taylor of California; baritone, Durlan Dumm of Akron, Ohio, formerly an Evangelical minister in Youngstown, Ohio, who is now completing his seminary work; and Paul Abel, a missionary's son from Tokyo, Japan.

The quartet presents a program of favorite religious numbers, old gospel songs, Negro spirituals and their personal testimonies.

They will give a number of concerts in this area this weekend, being at the Yellowbud E. U. B. church on Saturday; at Stoutsville Sunday school Sunday morning; at Pontius church for morning worship and at the Calvary E. U. B. church Sunday evening.

The public is invited to all of these concerts.

POLICE HUNTING JEALOUS SUITOR OF SLAIN GIRL

Los Angeles Mutilation Slaying Victim Native Of Massachusetts

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17—Identification of the Los Angeles mutilation slaying victim as Elizabeth Short, 22, Medford, Mass., gave police fresh clues today as to her slayer.

With the identification, search was launched for a "jealous Marine" about whom a girl identified as Miss Short had voiced fear to a Los Angeles policeman.

Policewoman Myril McBride said she questioned the girl in a main street bar the night prior to the murder. Although not detained, the girl confided to the policewoman she lived in fear of a boy friend who "threatened my life if I went out with anyone else."

The identification was made by the Los Angeles examiner, in cooperation with Los Angeles police and International News sound photos.

The examiner obtained the slain girl's fingerprints from Detective Sergeant Harry Hansen and F. A. Brown of the Los Angeles police homicide squad.

International News sound photos transmitted the prints to the examiner's Washington bureau for a check of FBI files.

FBI records disclosed Miss Short once was employed as a civilian clerk at Camp Cook, near Lompoc, Cal. Santa Barbara was given as her home address and Hyde Park, Mass., as her birthplace.

The girl's body, severed at the waist, was found in a field. Police said she apparently had been killed elsewhere and her body brought to the field. The body lay in plain view only a few feet from the sidewalk.

Dr. Frederick Newbarr, coroner's chief autopsy surgeon, declared Miss Short's mouth had been slit at each side to the ear while she still was alive. Then the girl was clubbed into unconsciousness.

Capt. Jack Donahoe of the homicide squad advanced the theory the girl's sadistic murderer had washed blood from the body before dumping it in thick weeds on the vacant lot.

Several bristles that might have come from a scrub brush were found on the hacked body.

POLICE HUNTING JEALOUS SUITOR OF SLAIN GIRL

Los Angeles Mutilation Slaying Victim Native Of Massachusetts

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17—Identification of the Los Angeles mutilation slaying victim as Elizabeth Short, 22, Medford, Mass., gave police fresh clues today as to her slayer.

With the identification, search was launched for a "jealous Marine" about whom a girl identified as Miss Short had voiced fear to a Los Angeles police woman.

Policewoman Myrtle McBride said she questioned the girl in a main street bar the night prior to the murder. Although not detained, the girl confided to the policewoman she lived in fear of a boy friend who "threatened my life if I went out with anyone else."

The identification was made by the Los Angeles examiner, in cooperation with Los Angeles police and International News sound photos.

The examiner obtained the slain girl's fingerprints from Detective Sergeant Harry Hansen and F. A. Brown of the Los Angeles police homicide squad.

International News sound photos transmitted the prints to the examiner's Washington bureau for a check of FBI files.

FBI records disclosed Miss Short once was employed as a civilian clerk at Camp Cook, near Lompoc, Cal. Santa Barbara was given as her home address and Hyde Park, Mass., as her birthplace.

The girl's body, severed at the waist, was found in a field. Police said she apparently had been killed elsewhere and her body brought to the field. The body lay in plain view only a few feet from the sidewalk.

Dr. Frederick Newbarr, coroner's chief autopsy surgeon, declared Miss Short's mouth had been slit at each side to the ear while she still was alive. Then the girl was clubbed into unconsciousness.

Capt. Jack Donahoe of the homicide squad advanced the theory the girl's sadistic murderer had washed blood from the body before dumping it in thick weeds on the vacant lot.

Several histles that might have come from a scrub brush were found on the hacked body.

On February 18, major units of the amphibious force of the Atlantic fleet will sail from Norfolk, Va., manned in part by 100 officers and 1500 enlisted Reservists from the ninth naval district. These vessels also will head south for tactical maneuvers and target firing, returning to Hampton Roads on March 24. Members of both the organized and volunteer reserves are eligible for these cruises, and will draw pay and travel allowance for the period of active training duty. Applications for either of these cruises must be submitted to the Commandant, Ninth Naval District, (Attn: Director of Training), Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., prior to January 22, 1947.

The U. S. S. Wisconsin, an Iowa class battleship commissioned in 1944, will make a special cruise from March 2 to 15. Sixty officers and 700 enlisted men will board the vessel at New York City for two weeks of training in navigation, gunnery, communications, ship handling, and administration. Applications for this cruise should reach the Commandant, Ninth Naval District, by February 5.

FAIR MANAGERS BACK MOVE FOR NEW STATE SITE

Officers Elected At Final Session Of Delegates From Ohio Fairs

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17—Campaigns for a new state fair site had the official backing of the Ohio Fair Managers association today.

The representatives of 99 county and independent fairs passed a resolution at the closing session of their annual convention last night approving new state grounds.

E. W. Lamson of Jefferson in Ashtabula county was named president of the association. Other officers named were: Lawrence P. Lake, Cincinnati, first vice president; Clair L. Hill, Wellington, second vice president; Mr.
Don A. Detrick, Bellefontaine, executive secretary, and B. U. Bell, Xenia, treasurer.

Mrs. Detrick and Bell were re-elected.

Other resolutions passed by the association seek continuation by the state legislature of $500 junior fair premium appropriations, re-appropriation of $350,000 for a new junior building at the state fairgrounds and repeal of federal tax on fair admissions.

Division winners in "best 1946 fair" competition were: counties of 65,000 or more population, Tuscarawas; 35,000 to 65,000, Sandusky; 24,000 to 35,000, Mercer, and below 24,000, Fayette.

CROP SPRAYING
BY AIRPLANE
WILL INCREASE

Along with a host of new in-secticides and fungicides comes the increased use of the airplane for dusting and spraying farm and orchard crops, reports V. H. Davis, horticultural specialist of the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, Columbus.

'Davis, in the current issue of the Ohio Farm Bureau News, writes:
"At the end of the war the presence of thousands of surplus aircraft and the return of a multitude of trained pilots revived interest in the use of the airplane for commercial purposes including contract spraying and dusting of orchards and farm crops. Because of the lightness of dust materials and the relative ease with which they were carried, airplane dusting has become much more common than airplane spraying."
"However, the remarkable results that have been secured with airplane spraying of concentrates promises many interesting developments along this line for the future. When equally good results are secured with one to three quarts of concentrates as compared with 15 to 30 gallons of liquids by the conventional high pressure sprayers, both orchardists and vegetable growers are definitely interested."

Decision to hold the annual banquet some time in February was reached by members of the Pick-away County Farmers and Sportsmen's Association at the monthly meeting Thursday night in the Masonic Temple. A committee was appointed to handle the arrangements and to fix the banquet date and place.

It was announced that the annual convention of the League of Ohio Sportsmen will be held Feb.
7-9 at the Desher-Wallick hotel, Columbus, and it was indicated that several Pickaway countians will be in attendance. William Kah, of the Ohio Division of Conservation, discussed methods for conserving the game population in the county. John E. Rowe showed a Conservation Division techni-

Lunch was served at the conclusion of the session. Walter Richards is president of the organization, and J. Fred Colville is secretary.

ISALY'S

To America's Producers, America's Thanks!

As this new year begins, America's ranchers and farmers are busy with their winter work—feeding and caring for their livestock. And all America is again properly grateful to you who produce the food
to keep us the world's best fed people.

To you who ride the range from Montana to Texas... whose teams and tractors till the nation's fertile acres... who have labored hard, long hours... who, with soil and seed, sunshine and rain, grass and grain, have achieved miracle after miracle of food production—to you America gives thanks! Thanks for the part you have had in all-time record crops of wheat and corn... for bumper yields of small grains...
for livestock numbers at high levels... for soar-ing dairy and poultry production. This abundant food which you have produced means better nutrition for millions of families—

because good nutrition is just good food that's good for you.

Vital as it is, production is only part of the nutritional job. Food must be processed. It has to be transported from surplus-producing areas to the markets where there are great numbers of people to eat it. Here is where Swift & Company comes into the picture. It's our job to provide many of the services required in bringing the foods which you produce to the dinner tables of the nation. Together we are in a vitally important industry. Because nutrition is our business and yours, together
we can help build a stronger, healthier America.

Things are NOT always as they seem

A 1-inch pipe and a 4-inch pipe run water into gallon pails. It seems as if the 4-inch pipe would fill 4 times as many pails in a given time. The truth is that it will fill 16 gallon pails while the 1-inch pipe is filling one.

When you read something like this: "Meat in commercial storage on January 1 was about 590,- 000,000 pounds", it sounds like a lot of meat.

Soda Bill Sez:

... that labor saved is money made.
... speak well of your enemies—you made them.

He Puts the NEW in Nutrition

We'd like you to meet a Swift scientist,
Dr. H. W. Schultz. He is head of the nutrition division of our research laboratories. The work of Dr. Schultz and his associates is mighty important to all of us in the livestock-meat industry.
They develop new products which open new markets for meats. This widens outlets for your livestock.

Dr. Schultz is the father of three children. As a scientist he knew growing children needed the body-building proteins of meat. As a father he knew the trouble of scraping and straining meats for the baby and discussing meat for the older children. An idea was born:
perhaps Swift & Company could discover a way to prepare canned meats suitable for babies. A research project was undertaken. The scientists went to work!

The research took more than two years. The Swift people consulted with leading doctors, child specialists.
They agreed that special meats for babies would be a good thing. Many methods of preparing various kinds of meats were tried. Hundreds of feeding tests were made by families with small children. Finally, six kinds of meat were approved by the doctors, nutritionists, mothers, and the babies themselves. Placed on the market in test cities, these products won immediate acceptance. They are now being sold in many cities, and facilities for their manufacture are being expanded.

These new products—strained and diced meats for babies—create a big new market for meats. There are millions of baby appetites to satisfy.

Martha Logan's Recipe for Navy Bean Soup

1 pint dried navy beans 1/2 tablespoon salt
2 quarts water 1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup sliced onion 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup diced celery 2 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons butter 4 frankfurters

Soak beans in water for several hours or overnight. Drain, add water. Fry onion and celery in butter. Add to beans, simmer 3 to 4 hours or until beans are soft, adding more water as water cooks away. When tender, save out 1 cup beans. Rub other beans through sieve. Reheat to boiling point. Add seasonings and flour mixed with 1/4 cup water.
Garnish with hot sliced frankfurters and whole beans.
Yield: 4 servings.

Meat Packers' Risks

Meat is perishable. It cannot be held for prices to go up. Like all meat packers, Swift & Company must sell, within a few days, this perishable product for what it will bring—no matter what price we paid for it.

We take risks in both buying and selling. In buying livestock the meat packer must pay
the price established by competitive bidding of over 26,000 slaughterers. If the meat packer overestimates the quality of an animal, or the amount of meat the animal will produce, or
the market demand for the meat, he will lose money. Hidden bruises, wounds, or other defects can create losses on any animal.

In selling, the meat packer must also follow
the market trends established by those who buy the meats. He stands the risk that meat demand will fall off and prices decline between the day he buys the livestock and the day he sells the meat—also the risk of accidents and delays in transit which can wash out his profit.

An average profit of less than 2% on sales is a small return for taking these substantial business risks.

An adequate record book is an extremely useful and valuable tool. It usually pays good dividends for the few minutes it takes out of the day's work to keep it up to date.

Specifically, a record book helps a farmer or rancher
Operate in a businesslike way.
Learn more about the details of his business
than ever before.
Know exactly how much he is making from
his land and his work.
Find out the weak spots in his enterprises.
Tell whether or not his operations are working out as planned.
Prepare a plan for future operations.
Itemize investments, receipts, and expenses.
Provide a record of all business transactions.
Keep track of bills owed by or to the farm
or ranch.
Establish a sound basis for credit.
Comply with government programs.
Prepare income tax returns.

There are farm and ranch record books especially prepared for each state which can help you save time and money. Write to your state agricultural college and obtain one. Properly used, it will give you a better understanding of your business and may open the way to increased profits.

JUVENILE CRIME DROPS

RAVENNA, O., Jan. 17.—Portage county juvenile judge Clay Detrick revealed today that juvenile crime in the county declined 40 per cent during 1946, falling from 513 cases the previous year to 305. He attributed interest of various civic groups and co-operation of parents and law enforcement officials for the decline.

CROP SPRAYING BY AIRPLANE WILL INCREASE

Along with a host of new in-secticides and fungicides comes
the increased use of the airplane
for dusting and spraying farm and orchard crops, reports V. H. Davis,
horticultural specialist of the Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, Columbus.

"Davis, in the current issue of the Ohio Farm Bureau News, writes:

"At the end of the war the presence of thousands of surplus aircraft and the return of a multitude of trained pilots revived interest in the use of the airplane
for commercial purposes including contract spraying and dusting of orchards and farm crops. Because of the lightness of dust materials
and the relative ease with which they were carried, airplane dusting has become much more common than airplane spraying."
"However, the remarkable results that have been secured with

airplane spraying of concentrates
promises many interesting developments along this line for the future. When equally good results are secured with one to three quarts of concentrates as compared with 15 to 30 gallons of liquids by the conventional high pressure sprayers both orchardists and vegetable growers are definitely interested."

To America's Producers, America's Thanks!

As this new year begins, America's ranchers and farmers are busy with their winter work—feeding and caring for their livestock. And all America is again
properly grateful to you who produce the food
to keep us the world's best fed people.

To you who ride the range from Montana to Texas... whose teams and tractors till the nation's fertile acres... who have labored hard, long hours... with soil and seed, sunshine and rain, grass and grain, have achieved miracle after miracle of food production—to you America gives thanks! Thanks for the part
you have had in all-time record crops of wheat
and corn... for bumper yields of small grains...
for livestock numbers at high levels... for soar-ing dairy and poultry production. This abundant food which you have produced means
better nutrition for millions of families—

because good nutrition is
just good food that's good for you.
Vital as it is, production is only part of the nutritional job. Food must be processed. It has to be transported from surplus-producing areas to the markets where there are great numbers of people to eat it. Here is where Swift & Company comes into the picture. It's our job to provide many of the services required in bringing the foods which you produce to the dinner tables of the nation. Together we are in a vitally important industry. Because nutrition is our business and yours, together
we can help build a stronger, healthier America.

Things are NOT always as they seem

A 1-inch pipe and a 4-inch pipe run water into gallon pails. It seems as if the 4-inch pipe would fill 4 times as many pails in a given time. The truth is that it will fill 16 gallon pails while the 1-inch pipe
is filling one.

When you read something like this: "Meat in commercial storage on January 1 was about 590,- 000,000 pounds", it sounds like a lot of meat.

He Puts the NEW in Nutrition

Dr. H. W. Schultz

We'd like you to meet a Swift scientist,
Dr. H. W. Schultz. He is head of the
nutrition division of our research laboratories. The work of Dr. Schultz and his associates is mighty important to all of us in the livestock-meat industry.
They develop new products which open
new markets for meats. This widens outlets for your livestock.

Dr. Schultz is the father of three children. As a scientist he knew growing children needed the body-building proteins of meat. As a father he knew the trouble of scraping and straining meats for the baby and dic-ing meat for the older children. An idea was born:
perhaps Swift & Company could discover a way to prepare canned meats suitable for babies. A research project was undertaken. The scientists went to work!
The research took more than two years. The Swift people consulted with leading doctors, child specialists.
They agreed that special meats for babies would be a good thing. Many methods of preparing various kinds of meats were tried. Hundreds of feedings tests were made by families with small children. Finally, six kinds of meat were approved by the doctors, nutritionists, mothers, and the babies themselves. Placed on the market in test cities, these products won immediate acceptance. They are now being sold in many cities, and facilities for their manufacture are being expanded.

These new products—strained and diced meats for babies—create a big new market for meats. There are millions of baby appetites to satisfy.

Martha Logan's Recipe for Navy Bean Soup

1 pint dried navy beans 1/4 tablespoon salt
2 quarts water 1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup sliced onion 2 tablespoons dry mustard
1 cup diced celery 2 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons butter 4 frankfurters

Soak beans in water for several hours or overnight. Drain, add water. Fry onion and celery in butter. Add to beans, simmer 3 to 4 hours or until beans are soft, adding more water as water cooks away. When tender, save out 1 cup beans. Rub other beans through sieve. Reheat to boiling point. Add seasonings and flour mixed with 1/4 cup water.
Garnish with hot sliced frankfurters and whole beans.
Yield: 4 servings.

Meat Packers' Risks

Meat is perishable. It cannot be held for prices to go up. Like all meat packers, Swift & Company
must sell, within a few days, this perishable product for what it will bring—no matter what price we paid for it.
We take risks in both buying and selling. In buying livestock the meat packer must pay
the price established by competitive bidding
of over 26,000 slaughterers. If the meat packer overestimates the quality of an animal, or the amount of meat the animal will produce, or
the market demand for the meat, he will lose money. Hidden bruises, wounds, or other defects can create losses on any animal.

In selling, the meat packer must also follow
the market trends established by those who buy the meats. He stands the risk that meat demand will fall off and prices decline between
the day he buys the livestock and the day he sells the meat—also the risk of accidents and
delays in transit which can wash out his profit.
An average profit of less than 2% on sales is a small return for taking these substantial business risks.

An adequate record book is an extremely useful and valuable tool. It usually pays good dividends for the
few minutes it takes out of the day's work to keep it up to date.

Specifically, a record book helps a farmer or rancher

Operate in a businesslike way.
Learn more about the details of his business
than ever before.

Know exactly how much he is making from
his land and his work.
Find out the weak spots in his enterprises.
Tell whether or not his operations are
working out as planned.

Prepare a plan for future operations.
Itemize investments, receipts, and expenses.
Provide a record of all business transactions.
Keep track of bills owed by or to the farm
or ranch.

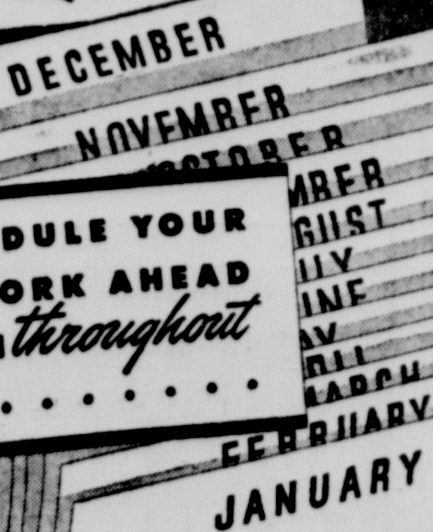

Establish a sound basis for credit.
Comply with government programs.
Prepare income tax returns.

There are farm and ranch record books especially prepared for each state which can help you save time and money. Write to your state agricultural

ROAD SIGNS

ROAD signs, says William Feather, Cleveland publisher, should never be planned by anyone familiar with a neighborhood. A Chicagoan cannot believe that anyone is so ignorant as not to know the location of Michigan Boulevard.

Detroiters, asked how to get to the Ambassador Bridge to Canada, invariably reply merely, "Oh, you can't miss it!" On a foggy day this does little good, for the bridge itself is high overhead and the approaches are hidden in a maze of narrow little streets on which the driver must go away from the river instead of toward the river as he would naturally incline to do.

There is a spot where the driver to Pensacola, in spite of enormous signs at the fork, only too easily take the wrong road and finds himself in Mobile.

A few years ago an alert newspaper discovered that in its downtown districts no one had bothered to put up route numbers. Local residents did not care whether their main street was U. S. 42 or 60.

It takes more than a board and paint pot to direct travelers well. It calls for imagination as to what the traveler thinks and how he feels by the time he reaches the given point. The big travel of the next few years is only beginning. It's time to give thought to these matters. Besides, the wild winds of winter naturally bring with them the thoughts of summer trips.

WHAT DOES 1946 SHOW?

A hundred years ago four interesting events took place. Dr. William T. G. Morton demonstrated that ether could be used to make operations painless. Johann Galle, a German astronomer, discovered the planet Neptune. The United States declared war on Mexico. Henry D. Thoreau was living in a hut by Walden Pond, outside of Concord, Mass., writing some of the books that have made him an immortal figure in American literature. These are the four events of 1846 chosen as the most significant by Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation.

A hundred years from now will 1946 have any event to record as interesting as any of these four?

Assignment: America . . . by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Any individual, wading through the morass of shameful statistics which set forth the semi-starvation wages and rigid personal restrictions under which America's school teachers have worked for generations, eventually will find himself wondering:

"Why have they kept at it?"

There are two answers.

One reason, quite simply and truthfully, is that many of them love their work and consider it extremely important. They thus keep to their profession for the same reason the poverty-stricken scientist stays with his.

The second reason once was the respect accorded teachers.

The term "once was" is used advisedly, for there is serious doubt among the nation's public school teachers as to whether their profession is the object of respect—or ridicule.

It is not an idle or ill-considered doubt. In the small communities, you hear the term "school teacher" or "school-marm" tossed off almost tolerantly, and you sense that the tolerance is there only because people realize that, after all, you must have teachers, just as—let's say—you must have taxes.

And there is no question but that during the past decade, the term "professor," or more specifically, "long-haired professor," has become an epithet of ridicule.

The fact that its connotation has been political, rather than professional, does not remove one iota of the patronizing stigma thus placed on any person in the profession. It implies that his point of view is warped, that he is a dreamer rather than a doer, that he is a theorist instead of a practical thinker.

If this were true, then we have been fools indeed to place such people in charge of our children's education. (It is noteworthy, however, that until the advent of atomic power, people delighted in using such demeaning terms to describe scientists. . .)

But what is the percentage of this ridicule of teachers?

Perhaps the main causes are salary and submission. In the early days of this land, the school teacher was one of the best paid and least pestered members of the community. Ergo, he was respected.

Today, despite his investment of many years and thousands of dollars in his education and training, the average American public school teacher is lower-paid than an unskilled day laborer or odd-jobs man. Also, his personal life is ruled with a rigid hand by the school board and the community. They tell him what he can do, what he can say, how he can live; and any demonstration of individual independence usually concludes his career.

From the point of view of the average person, he thus becomes a sucker—and Americans have little respect to expend on suckers. . .

On a national scale, the veterwho occasionally attempts to translate the handwriting he sees on the wall is ridiculed and hooted down with such shouts as "long-haired professor!"

Thus, ridicule has replaced the respect which once kept great American teachers in our schools even when, through the years, their salaries became comparatively smaller and their restrictions greater. . .

Today, you see the result of all three factors—and that loss of respect, although partially caused by the other two, is not the least of the three. More than 600,000 teachers, trained and experienced, have quit their profession in the past five years. . . More than 10,000 classrooms are empty this Winter for lack of teachers. . . One out of every eight current teachers is unqualified, teaching on an "emergency certificate."

And those extremely conscientious qualified teachers who remain today are, inevitably, growing more bitter toward the system of government whose principles they are supposed to instill in the children. . .

Today, there is a bill before congress to increase teachers' salaries. If passed, it will be a beginning. But the rest remains with American communities—to relax the restrictions placed on teachers' personal lives, and revive the respect which once was accorded them.

Such a transition will seem more intelligent and dignified if it comes voluntarily—rather than like the frenzied sort of panic which marked the transformation from ridicule to abject homage toward scientists after the first atomic bomb was dropped. . .

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Mr. Truman revised many categories in his new budget and gave them higher sounding names—for instance he had a new one he called "social welfare, health and security" (which is really about all I want out of life or government or God, as a matter of fact.) But the significant and obliterated truth of the budget matter was he increased every single category new or old, except two. No matter what you call them, they all went up, except two, over the three year period of his budgetary figures.

You housewives who figure budgets for living at these prices know a budget these days is a hope expressed in figures, within which you hardly can hope to live. The federal budget is a little more complicated because of a time element. Mr. Truman is figuring income and outgo for a period beginning six months hence and not ending until 18 months from date. He was therefore about as vague as you might be under those circumstances in these items, particularly as he can largely fix his income tax adjustments—of which he will have none, he says.

But to make the figures real as of today he submits them for three different years, each time, and this time for the current fiscal year of the government, the last one, and the far-off next one. Now in only two of his categories are his expenditure proposals less for next year than for last year. Those two are "national defense" and something he calls (not significantly, I hope) finance, commerce and industry. (I have not included a third account which has been reduced, called "refund of receipts," which is purely technical repayment of taxes already collected.)

National defense had to be cut because you cannot spend as much for it in peacetime as in war, even last year's partial war year. This he cut from last year's 45 billion down to next year's 11 billion. The thing he called "finance, commerce and industry" was cut 215 million down to 112 million, nearly in half.

But look at his figure chart and you will see "labor" went up from 104 to 117 million. That category I mentioned as ideal, "social welfare, health and security" went up from $1.1 billion to $1.6 billion. But you may summarize the general truth by saying his new category called "general government" (this is much better than saying the White House, or congress, or any individual part of general government, the mention of which might be odious)—as I say, general government went up about a third from $988 million to $1.4 billion.

So you must conclude from a budget analysis that the president's proposed financial scheme is generally this:

To cut down on nothing really except finance, commerce and industry, but to

Dermatitis—And Some of The Allergies That Cause It

By HERMAN N. RUNDESEN, M.D.

DERMATITIS or inflammation of the skin may be produced in many ways. Infections may cause it. Rubbing or other mechanical irritations may be responsible. But perhaps the most frequent cause of all is contact with some substance to which a patient is allergic or over-sensitive.

Where allergic disorders are concerned, each man is a law unto himself. Many things which are perfectly harmless to the great majority may, nonetheless, bring about violent reactions in this or that individual. Thus, there are almost as many causes of contact dermatitis as there are people who suffer from it. At one time or another, such innocent items as leather, khaki clothing, nylon, glasses, matches, adhesive tape, nickel in rings, and various dyed articles have all been found guilty of producing inflammation of the skin.

Contact With Medicine

According to Dr. James B. Howell of Dallas, the cause, often, is contact with some type of medicine. The sulfonamide preparations and the mercurials, rank as the most powerful sensitizing agents and the ones most likely to cause contact dermatitis. If a patient is sensitive to one sulfonamide compound, he is likely to be sensitive to all of them.

Many patients also become sensitive to tars. Thus it is often found that a patient who has been treated for some slight skin eruption such as hives, a burn, an insect bite or athlete's foot develops a dermatitis because he is sensitive to the preparations which are put on the skin to overcome these various conditions. Of course, when skin inflammation develops in this way, the use of the various drugs should be stopped at once and other preparations substituted.

Types of Vegetation

Contact dermatitis may develop because of sensitization to various types of vegetation. Contact dermatitis may develop from weeds, among farmers, ranchers and workers in oil fields. Those who live in large cities rarely develop dermatitis from this cause but those who hunt, fish and golf may come in contact with weeds often enough to get a dermatitis in occasional instances. These patients develop a rash which usually starts around the ankles. The backs of the hands, forearms, face, and eyelids often become involved and, in fact, the rash may progress until all of the exposed surfaces of the body are affected.

Treatment in these cases involves complete avoidance of contact with weeds and desensitization by injection under the skin of extracts from the weeds which are producing the difficulty. In some instances, the eruption may be so persistent that a change in occupation is necessary.

The first step in treatment of contact dermatitis is to find the substance to which the patient is sensitive. Then in most cases by elimination of contact, the disturbance can be overcome.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, January 17

BY means of a soundly studied and well-organized program, with carefully considered techniques, ways and means, it is probable that a highly beneficial change may come into the circumstances and beget much satisfaction and happiness. Under such benign promise, with substantial and enduring foundations, there are signs of splendid support and recognition of merit for perhaps long-term protracted labors. Or the sense of duty and responsibility may rate worthy returns for fidelity.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which there may materialize certain lasting and appropriate returns for long-term endeavors, in which sound, constructive and faithful performance may at last win approbation and generous recognition from employers, elders or other sources of appreciation. It may be well to work to this end with studied development of plans and objectives for far-reaching security and dependability. Well-considered thought and high purpose, patience, integrity, good sense and duty, bring their own rich rewards.

A child born on this day has many sterling qualities and constructive skills, fitting it for a purposeful career, and bringing recognition, security and much lasting happiness.

CHAPTER FORTY

WHEN Sheila finally wrote, she wasted no time on preliminaries. "Bob and May are staying out here late this year, and I've decided to stay with them. I'd rather go back and forth than try to sleep in town in the heat. I want to keep Mary as long as we're here. She has Joan to play with and is having a grand time. She is feeling fine and swims like the cutest little fish you ever saw. Bob keeps an eye on her just as he does Joan, so you needn't worry about her at all."

"It's her way of claiming Mary," Philip said after a short silence. "It would at least establish a precedent. If this summer, why not next?"

It seemed reasonable enough at that. Anne thought. Certainly from Sheila's point of view nothing could have been more reasonable. "It's the usual thing, of course," she said quietly.

"Yes, but I don't want it that way. I told Sheila I didn't want Mary shunted back and forth between us."

"And yet," said Anne, forcing herself to admit the fact reluctantly, "she has some rights."

"She hasn't legally. She agreed to let me have custody in order to get the divorce. Oh, if she got mad she could probably make trouble, get the case reopened, but I don't think she will. She has some sense of justice; and I think she's a little too honest to put on a sentimental mother act in a courtroom."

Anne was silent. She doubted that Sheila's sense of justice would stand in the way of anything she wanted; and it rather annoyed her that Philip should think it would. But she was on her guard now. She would not draw away from the discussion a second time. She knew it was not easy for Philip to talk to her about it, and she was determined to meet him half-way.

Presently she became aware of Philip's eyes fixed on her questioningly. "You should have something to say about it, Anne. What do you think?"

But it was even harder than she had thought to put her feelings into words. "It does seem to me that if Sheila wants Mary in the summer, she has a right to have her. But I—"

"But you'd rather have her all the time if you're to have her at all. Is that it?"

"Yes," she said gratefully.

"Then I think I'll write Sheila that I shall expect Mary home when the two weeks are up."

And if Sheila didn't send her? Well, Anne thought, they'd worry about that when they came to it. Sheila's answer was wired and brief. "If you want Mary, come and get her."

Philip laughed, and then swore. "Well, anyhow, it doesn't look as though she's planning a custody fight," he said.

It didn't look to Anne as though Sheila were planning anything except to see Philip again.

"Couldn't you get a court order so Sheila would have to send Mary back?" she asked tentatively.

"I suppose I could. But, after all, I'm not so sure I'm in the right that I want to be any more high-handed than I have to be. I think I'd rather see Sheila and try to come to some kind of understanding with her."

Anne was not sure that he was right either. But neither was she sure that he did not welcome the chance to see Sheila again. She made one last attempt. "How are you going to find the time?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said Philip. "But I'll have to manage somehow."

Philip turned off the highway into the familiar road that wound up through Merrimac Forest. He and Sheila had come up here so many times that it was the nearest thing to coming home. He wondered if Sheila would be here now. Probably not. Probably she had gone back to work.

There was the cottage. With a quick twist of the wheel, Philip brought the car around the last steep turn, and pulled up behind Bob's car parked in the drive. Someone was home, at least.

"Hi, Philip," May Roberts was running down the steps. "Sheila said you might show up today."

If this was home, May and Bob were the family. They kissed warmly, and May tucked her arm in his. "Come downstairs; it's hotter than hades up there. Are you cooked?"

"Just about. I drove all night, but of course the tail end this morning was the worst. How's everybody?"

"Fine. Sheila went back to work this morning. She drove Bob in. Mary and Joan are out in the woods hunting wild flowers. They have got Raada with them."

"Sounds safe enough." His eye fell on a small bicycle standing against the porch. "That's the one Sheila got her?"

May nodded. "Isn't Sheila the limit? A bicycle for a baby like her?"

They went down the steps to the big screened-in room under the cottage. It was much cooler than the outdoors, but still it must have been nearly a hundred, Philip thought.

May was back almost immediately with tall glasses. "If we'd known you were coming, Bob would have driven in, in his car, and come home early. Why didn't you let us know?"

"I thought Sheila would be expecting me. Did you see her telegram?"

May grimaced. "I heard her telephone it in. Are you taking Mary back?"

"Yes." He studied May's face, suddenly turned thoughtful. "Mary may not want to go," she said.

"No? Well, I can't help it if she doesn't." He put down his glass. "I suppose you're on Sheila's side?"

"No, on yours."

"Well, that's a break. Maybe you can help me make Sheila see reason."

"I can't do that. She just comes back with the question, would I let Bob have Joan all the time, and when I say I wouldn't have left her with her grandmother for three years, either, she just shrugs."

"But you think Mary is going to want to stay?"

"Oh, I don't know that she will. I just thought I'd warn you. When you devote yourself to a child every minute, and give it everything it asks for, and laugh at everything it says, and make it feel important, it's just naturally going to like being with you. If Sheila kept her much longer, you'd find you had a pretty spoiled child on your hands, I'm afraid."

"What do you think Sheila will do?" Philip asked.

"Oh, I don't think she'll do anything. I think that telegram was partly deviltry, and partly hope that you couldn't come and would just let it ride."

"Mary doesn't expect me, does she?"

"Oh no; she hasn't an idea." The possibility that Mary might not want to go home with him had never occurred to Philip. But he saw May's point. And May naturally assumed that Mary's stepmother didn't make that much fuss over her. He wondered what Sheila had said about Anne.

"I think," said May, as though she had read his thoughts, "from what Sheila and Mary both have said, and from what I've seen of Mary, that Anne must be a lovely person."

"She is," said Philip.

"Oh, here come the children now," May said, looking past him. Philip turned to see the little girls coming in, their hands full of flowers. "Hello, Monkey."

Mary stopped dead. Then, brushing past Joan, almost knocking her down, and scattering flowers as she came, she flung herself on Philip. "Philip! When did you come?"

"Just a little while ago."

"Did Anne come?"

"No. She's waiting at home for you, with Micky."

He kissed her, and then raising his head, he met Joan's solemn brown eyes. "Oh, hello, Joan. I missed you when this cyclone hit me." He held out his hand, and she took it gravely.

"It's been a long time since you were here."

"So long I thought you'd have forgotten me. Where is Raada?" he asked her.

"She brought us home, and then went off by herself."

"Why didn't you bring Micky, Philip?" Mary demanded.

"Well, I never thought of it, for one thing. Anyhow, Anne needs some company with both of us gone."

"Did you come to take me home?"

"Yes. Ready to go?"

"We're not right now, are we?"

Two pairs of eyes were fixed on him. He knew Mary was watching besides. "Oh, not until tomorrow."

He tried to make it sound quite far off.

"Couldn't we stay just a little longer?"

He shook his head determinedly. "I have to get back."

"You HAVE to?"

"Yes."

It was not the first time he'd been reminded of that morning in Mr. Lane's garden. Mary was sitting on his lap now, fussing with his tie, but he waited with the same uneasiness he had felt then. She gave a final hug and let go. "Okay," she said.

He met May's understanding glance as he looked up with a little sigh of relief. Now if only Sheila—

YOU'RE TELLING ME!

WE'RE certainly looking forward to that proposed Adam and Eve film. Not so much because of the leading characters—but Hollywood's idea of the Garden of Eden in technicolor should be something to see.

Height isn't everything. James Madison was a five-foot-four shorty but he reached the White House.

A Spring poet probably keeps warm during the Winter by burning all those last year's poems that didn't sell.

Russia's Gromyko went fishing the other day and caught but one small fish. He'd have saved himself annoyance if, at the start, he had simply vetoed the idea.

ROAD SIGNS

ROAD signs, says William Feather, Cleveland publisher, should never be planned by anyone familiar with a neighborhood. A Chicagoan cannot believe that anyone is so ignorant as not to know the location of Michigan Boulevard.

Detroiters, asked how to get to the Ambassador Bridge to Canada, invariably reply merely, "Oh, you can't miss it!" On a foggy day this does little good, for the bridge itself is high overhead and the approaches are hidden in a maze of narrow little streets on which the driver must go away from the river instead of toward the river as he would naturally incline to do.

There is a spot where the driver to Pensacola, in spite of enormous signs at the fork, only too easily take the wrong road and finds himself in Mobile.

A few years ago an alert newspaper discovered that in its downtown districts no one had bothered to put up route numbers. Local residents did not care whether their main street was U. S. 42 or 60.

It takes more than a board and paint pot to direct travelers well. It calls for imagination as to what the traveler thinks and how he feels by the time he reaches the given point. The big travel of the next few years is only beginning. It's time to give thought to these matters. Besides, the wild winds of winter naturally bring with them the thoughts of summer trips.

WHAT DOES 1946 SHOW?

A hundred years ago four interesting events took place. Dr. William T. G. Morton demonstrated that ether could be used to make operations painless. Johann Galle, a German astronomer, discovered the planet Neptune. The United States declared war on Mexico. Henry D. Thoreau was living in a hut by Walden Pond, outside of Concord, Mass., writing some of the books that have made him an immortal figure in American literature. These are the four events of 1846 chosen as the most significant by Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation.

A hundred years from now will 1946 have any event to record as interesting as any of these four?

Assignment: America . . . by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Any individual, wading through the morass of shameful statistics which set forth the semi-starvation wages and rigid personal restrictions under which America's school teachers have worked for generations, eventually will find himself wondering:

"Why have they kept at it?"

There are two answers.

One reason, quite simply and truthfully, is that many of them love their work and consider it extremely important. They thus keep to their profession for the same reason the poverty-stricken scientist stays with his.

The second reason once was the respect accorded teachers. . .

The term "once was" is used advisedly, for there is serious doubt among the nation's public school teachers as to whether their profession is the object of respect—or ridicule.

It is not an idle or ill-considered doubt. In the smallest communities, you hear the term "school teacher" or "school-marm" tossed off almost tolerantly, and you sense that the tolerance is there only because people realize that, after all, you must have teachers, just as—let's say—you must have taxes.

And there is no question but that during the past decade, the term "professor," or more specifically, "long-haired professor," has become an epithet of ridicule. The fact that its connotation has been political, rather than professional, does not remove one iota of the patronizing stigma thus placed on any person in the profession. It implies that his point of view is warped, that he is a dreamer rather than a doer, that he is a theorist instead of a practical thinker.

If this were true, then we have

But what is the parentage of this ridicule of teachers?

Perhaps the main causes are salary and submission. In the early days of this land, the school teacher was one of the best paid and least pestered members of the community. Ergo, he was respected.

Today, despite his investment of many years and thousands of dollars in his education and training, the average American public school teacher is lower-paid than an unskilled day laborer or odd-jobs man. Also, his personal life is ruled with a rigid hand by the school board and the community. They tell him what he can do, what he can say, how he can live; and any demonstration of individual independence usually concludes his contract.

From the point of view of the average person, he thus becomes a sucker—and Americans have little respect to expend on suckers. . .

Their resultant ridicule expresses itself in small communities by making the teacher little more than a menial servant. He, or she, is required to do all those jobs no one else will touch, and after school hours, too. Whether it be teaching Sunday school, serving as recording secretary for the sewing circle or being a sort of mass baby-sitter on lodge nights, it's a rare teacher who dares rebel without fear of reprisal when contract time comes again.

On a national scale, the veteran and much-degreed educator who occasionally attempts to translate the handwriting he sees on the wall is ridiculed and hooted down with such shouts as "long-haired professor!"

Thus, ridicule has replaced the respect which once kept great American teachers in our schools even when, through the years, their salaries became comparatively smaller and their restrictions greater. . .

Today, you see the result of all three factors—and that loss of respect, although partially caused by the other two, is not the least of the three. More than 600,000 teachers, trained and experienced, have quit their profession in the past five years. . .

More than 10,000 classrooms are empty this winter for lack of teachers. . . One out of every eight current teachers is unqualified, teaching on an "emergency certificate."

And those extremely conscientious qualified teachers who remain today are, inevitably, growing more bitter toward the system of government whose principles they are supposed to instill in the children. . .

Today, there is a bill before congress to increase teachers' salaries. If passed, it will be a beginning. But the rest remains with American communities—to relax the restrictions placed on teachers' personal lives, and revive the respect which once was accorded them.

Such a transition will seem more intelligent and dignified if it comes voluntarily—rather than like the frenzied sort of panic which marked the transformation from ridicule to abject homage toward scientists after the first atomic bomb was dropped. . .

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Mr. Truman revised many categories in his new budget and gave them higher sounding names—for instance he had a new one he called "social welfare, health and security" (which is really about all I want out of life or government or God, as a matter of fact.) But the significant and obliterated truth of the budget matter was he increased every single category new or old, except two. No matter what you call them, they all went up, except two, over the three year period of his budgetary figures.

You housewives who figure budgets for living at these prices know a budget these days is a hope expressed in figures, within which you hardly can hope to live. The federal budget is a little more complicated because of a time element. Mr. Truman is figuring income and outgo for a period beginning six months hence and not ending until 18 months from date. He was therefore about as vague as you might be under those circumstances in these items, particularly as he can largely fix his income tax adjustments—of which he will have none, he says.

But to make the figures real as of today he submits them for three different years, each time, and this time for the current fiscal year of the government, the last one, and the far-off next one. Now in only two of his categories are his expenditure proposals less for next year than for last year. Those two are "national defense" and something he calls (not significantly, I hope) finance, commerce and industry. (I have not included a third account which has been reduced, called "refund of receipts," which is purely technical repayment of taxes already collected.)

National defense had to be cut because you cannot spend as much for it in peacetime as in war, even last year's partial war year. This he cut from last year's 45 billion down to next year's 11 billion. The thing he called "finance, commerce and industry" was cut 215 million down to 112 million, nearly in half.

But look at his figure chart and you will see "labor" went up from 104 to 117 million. That category I mentioned as ideal, "social welfare, health and security" went up from $1.1 billion to $1.6 billion. But you may summarize the general truth by saying his new category called "general government" (this is much better than saying the White House, or congress, or any individual part of general government, the mention of which might be odious)—as I say, general government went up about a third from $988 million to $1.4 billion.

So you must conclude from a budget analysis that the president's proposed financial scheme is generally this:

To cut down on nothing really except finance, commerce and industry, but to

Dermatitis—And Some of The Allergies That Cause It

By HERMAN N. RUNDEN, M.D.

DERMATITIS or inflammation of the skin may be produced in many ways. Infections may cause it. Rubbing or other mechanical irritations may be responsible. But perhaps the most frequent cause of all is contact with some substance to which a patient is allergic or over-sensitive.

Where allergic disorders are concerned, each man is a law unto himself. Many things which are perfectly harmless to the great majority may, nonetheless, bring about violent reactions in this or that individual. Thus, there are almost as many causes of contact dermatitis as there are people who suffer from it. At one time or another, such innocent items as leather, khaki clothing, nylon, glasses, matches, adhesive tape, nickel in rings, and various dyed articles have all been found guilty of producing inflammation of the skin.

Contact With Medicine

According to Dr. James B. Howell of Dallas, the cause, often, is contact with some type of medicine. The sulfonamide preparations and the mercurials, rank as the most powerful sensitizing agents and the ones most likely to cause contact dermatitis. If a patient is sensitive to one sulfonamide compound, he is likely to be sensitive to all of them.

Many patients also become sensitive to tars. This is often found that a patient who has been treated for some slight skin eruption such as hives, a burn, an insect bite or athlete's foot develops a dermatitis because he is sensitive to the preparations which are put on the skin to overcome these various conditions. Of course, when skin inflammation develops in this way, the use of the various drugs should be stopped at once and other preparations substituted.

Types of Vegetation

Contact dermatitis may develop because of sensitization to various types of vegetation. Contact dermatitis may develop from weeds, among farmers, ranchers and workers in oil fields. Those who live in large cities rarely develop dermatitis from this cause but those who hunt, fish and golf may come in contact with weeds often enough to get a dermatitis in occasional instances. These patients develop a rash which usually starts around the ankles. The backs of the hands, forearms, face, and eyelids often become involved and, in fact, the rash may progress until all of the exposed surfaces of the body are affected.

Treatment in these cases involves complete avoidance of contact with weeds and desensitization by injection under the skin of extracts from the weeds which are producing the difficulty. In some instances, the eruption may be so persistent that a change in occupation is necessary.

The first step in treatment of contact dermatitis is to find the substance to which the patient is sensitive. Then in most cases by elimination of contact, the disturbance can be overcome.

For Friday, January 17

BY means of a soundly studied and well-organized program, with carefully considered techniques, ways and means, it is probable that a highly beneficial change may come into the circumstances and beget much satisfaction and happiness. Under such benign promise, with substantial and enduring foundations, there are signs of splendid support and recognition of merit for perhaps long-term protracted labors. Or the sense of duty and responsibility may rate worthy returns for fidelity.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which there may materialize certain lasting and appropriate returns for long-term endeavors, in which sound, constructive and faithful performance may at last win approbation from employers, elders or other sources of appreciation. It may be well to work to this end with studied development of plans and objectives for far-reaching security and dependability. Well-considered thought and high purpose, patience, integrity, good sense and duty, bring their own rich rewards.

A child born on this day has many sterling qualities and constructive skills, fitting it for a purposeful career, and bringing recognition, security and much lasting happiness.

CHAPTER FORTY

WHEN Sheila finally wrote, she wasted no time on preliminaries. "Bob and May are staying out here late this year, and I've decided to stay with them. I'd rather go back and forth than try to sleep in town in the heat. I want to keep Mary as long as we're here. She has Joan to play with and is having a grand time. She is feeling fine and swims like the cutest little fish you ever saw. Bob keeps an eye on her just as he does Joan, so you needn't worry about her at all."

"It's her way of claiming Mary," Philip said after a short silence. "It would at least establish a precedent. If this summer, why not next?"

It seemed reasonable enough at that, Anne thought. Certainly from Sheila's point of view nothing could have been more reasonable.

"It's the usual thing, of course," she said quietly.

"Yes, but I don't want it that way. I told Sheila I didn't want Mary shunted back and forth between us."

"And yet," said Anne, forcing herself to admit the fact reluctantly, "she has some rights."

"She hasn't legally. She agreed to let me have custody in order to get the divorce. Oh, if she got mad she could probably make trouble, get the case reopened, but I don't think she will. She has some sense of justice; and I think she's a little too honest to put on a sentimental mother act in a courtroom."

Anne was silent. She doubted that Sheila's sense of justice would stand in the way of anything she wanted; and it rather annoyed her that Philip should think it would. But she was on her guard now. She would not draw away from the discussion a second time. She knew it was not easy for Philip to talk to her about it, and she was determined to meet him half-way.

Presently she became aware of Philip's eyes fixed on her questioningly. "You should have something to say about it, Anne. What do you think?"

But it was even harder than she had thought to put her feelings into words. "It does seem to me that if Sheila wants Mary in the summer, she has a right to have her. But I—" she stopped.

"But you'd rather have her all the time if you're to have her at all. Is that it?"

"Yes," she said gratefully. "Then I think I'll write Sheila that I shall expect Mary home when the two weeks are up."

And if Sheila didn't send her?—Well, Anne thought, they'd worry about that when they came to it. Sheila's answer was wired and brief. "If you want Mary, come and get her."

Philip laughed, and then swore. "Well, anyhow, it doesn't look as though she's planning a custody fight," he said.

It didn't look to Anne as though Sheila were planning anything except to see Philip again. "Couldn't you get a court order so Sheila would have to send Mary back?" she asked tentatively.

"I suppose I could. But, after all, I'm not so sure I'm in the right that I want to be any more high-handed than I have to be. I think I'd rather see Sheila and try to come to some kind of understanding with her."

Anne was not sure that he was right either. But neither was she sure that he did not welcome the chance to see Sheila again. She made one last attempt. "How are you going to find the time?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said Philip. "But I'll have to manage somehow."

Philip turned off the highway into the familiar road that wound up through Merrimac Forest. He and Sheila had come up here so many times that it was the nearest thing to coming home. He wondered if Sheila would be here now. Probably not. Probably she had gone back to work.

There was the cottage. With a quick twist of the wheel, Philip brought the car around the last steep turn, and pulled up behind Bob's car parked in the drive. Someone was home, at least.

"Hi, Philip," May Roberts was running down the steps. "Sheila said you might show up today."

If this was home, May and Bob were the family. They kissed warmly, and May tucked her arm in his. "Come downstairs; it's hotter than hades up there. Are you cooked?"

"Did Anne come?"

"No. She's waiting at home for you, with Micky."

He kissed her, and then raising his head, he met Joan's solemn brown eyes. "Oh, hello, Joan. I missed you when this cypress bit me." He held out his hand, and she took it gravely.

"It's been a long time since you were here."

"So long I thought you'd have forgotten me. Where is Raada?" he asked her.

Wesley-Weds Class Has Dinner and Meeting

Losing Team Hosts At Session In Stout Home

The Wesley-Weds Sunday school class of First Methodist church held their monthly social meeting, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Stout, South Court street, Thursday evening. Dinner was prepared and served by members of the losing team of the recently held membership drive for the winning team in the recreation room of the Stout home.

After the dinner a business meeting was held. The members decided to divide the duties of the secretary-treasurer, due to the increase of membership in the society. Mrs. David Glick will remain secretary and Mrs. Vernon Hawks, was elected treasurer. Mrs. William Cook was elected press reporter. The collection of the evening was donated to the March of Dimes campaign. It was decided to change the meeting dates from the second Thursday of each month, to the third Thursday. Next meeting will be February 20, the place of meeting to be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Plum and Mr. and Mrs. William Cook were in charge of games played during the social hour. Winners of the contests were Mrs. Roloff Wolford, Frank Wantz, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Blake.

The following members were present, Mr. and Mrs. Roloff Wolford, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hawks, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Rader, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Weller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wantz, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Elmon Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Pharo Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cook, Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Gail Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. John Evans, Mr. and Mrs. M. Blue Ribbon Dairy Wins Cage Loop First Round

Blue Ribbon Dairy finished the first round of play in the City Industrial Basketball league with a perfect record Thursday night. Eshelman's finished in second place and Robtown Stock Farm took third.

Blue Ribbon scored victory No. 7 at the expense of Eagles by a 60-43 count. Eshelman defeated Pickaway Dairy 35-20. Robtown took third by defeating Ashville KP 42-36. Tarlton AC took fifth place by beating Five Points 49-32.

In the first game Ashville KP got away to a good start with an 11-5 lead over Robtown in the first period. At halftime Robtown led 21-16 and was out in front 33-25 at the three quarter point. C. Gullick led the winners with 15 points. "Red" Wilson had 12 for Ashville.

Leon Sims went on another scoring spree in the second game of the evening, tossing in 13 baskets and two foul shots for 28 points. Sowers and Leist had 11 each for Eagles.

Eshelman's led all the way against Pickaway Dairy, 9-6, 16-10 and 24-16. Jack Hennis had 11 for the winners and Anderson and Callihan had 6 each for Pickaway Dairy.

Second high individual score of the evening was 18 by Jones of Tarlton. His team won by staging a last half rally after trailing the first half. Five Points was out in front 10-3 the first period and 17-13 at the half. At the end of the third quarter Tarlton led 31-27. Smith and Anderson had 8 points each for Five Points.

Second round play starts next Thursday night.

LUTHERANS COP 7TH STRAIGHT; CAGERS BUSY

By International News Service
Those fast-stepping Capital cagers continued along their hustling way today after racking up their seventh consecutive victory last night, 67 to 53, over Wilmington.

The state's only unbeaten college quintet utilized superior height to control the backboards and raced to an easy win, the second for the Lutherans over Wilmington.

Dick Ott, Capital scoring ace, was held to 11 points, but teammate Jim Carlisle broke loose with 16. Wilmington's Norman Ashworth, however, topped honors with 18.

Findlay, Otterbein and Toledo recorded other victories last night. The Oilers whipped Ashland, 65 to 50, in an Ohio Conference game. Otterbein crushed Denison, 60 to 38, while Toledo subdued Valparaiso, Ind., 69 to 45.

Headlining tonight's nine-game scheduled are engagements between Bowling Green and Baldwin-Wallace at Toledo and Mid-American conference rivals Cincinnati and Ohio U. at Cincinnati.

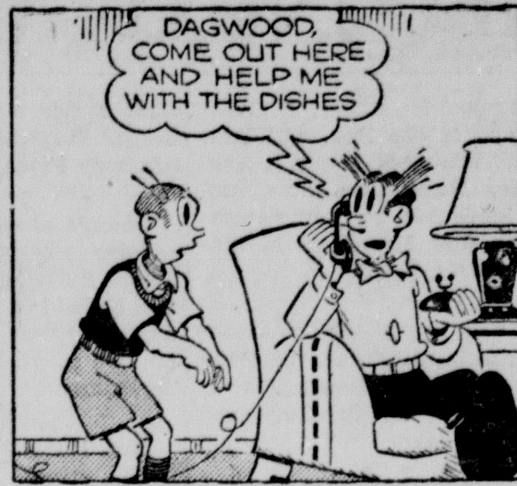

In intersectional games, West-End Reserve tackles Albion, Mich. Duquesne tests John Carroll, Ohio. Findlay meets Earlham, Findlay plays Gannon, and Xavier hits undefeated Marshall of West Virginia. Ohio Conference play pits Heidelberg against Mt. Union and Akron against Wooster.

Today's Horoscope

Through perseverance and adapting yourself, you will gain success. You are fair-minded, just and affectionate. You also have a good deal of executive ability. Your deepest happiness will be found in a deep and trusting love. Today's aspects are adverse, yet for many it will probably be a day of fulfilled hopes, gainful events, or pleasant surprises. Take advantage of it.

NBC has reserved a favorite spot in its Summer schedule for one of America's beloved musicians, Sigmund Romberg. He goes on the air sometime in June.

Until then Romberg will tour the country with a 56 piece orchestra. His concerts start Feb. 7 in New Jersey, will take his orchestra and cast of singers, including Gene Harvey, Nita Carol, Gail Maners, Leonne Hall and Esther Borja, through 117 cities.

Incidentally the 60-year-old composer has in his musical lifetime penned 2,000 popular songs and more than 40 musical shows.

Crowd? The English language lacks any word to describe the barbaric slaughter that takes place on subway trains every morning and every evening. I saw this happen one a. m. . .

Just as the train pulled into the station and the doors opened a man reached up to brush a toast crumb from his lips, was jammed into the car and rode all the way to Times Square with his elbow at full mast and his fingers pressed to his lips.

But that is wavering from the subject.

against the morning subway crowds with coffee and toast.

Crowd? The English language lacks any word to describe the barbaric slaughter that takes place on subway trains every morning and every evening. I saw this happen one a. m. . . .

Just as the train pulled into the station and the doors opened a man reached up to brush a toast crumb from his lips, was jammed into the car and rode all the way to Times Square with his elbow at full mast and his fingers pressed to his lips.

But that is wavering from the subject.

EASY DIVORCES ARE CHECKED IN NEW MEASURE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17 — It's going to be harder to get a divorce in Ohio, if State Sen. George Shurtz has his way.

It might even be harder for some folks to get married.

Shurtz, a retired minister and famed opponent of church bingo games—he now has pending a bill to outlaw them—sponsored a measure to revamp the Ohio divorce laws.

The Newcomerstown Republican proposed to outlaw suit for divorce within a year of marriage. He also would ban re-marriage within a year of a divorce.

Other provisions of the bill would provide for an interlocutory decree that would not be final for six months, subject to revocation on application of both parties; tighten residence requirements for an Ohio divorce, and set up stiffer requirements for recognition of a divorce granted in other states.

Shurtz declared that "outright fraud (in the filing of divorce cases) goes on daily" now under present law. He defended his interlocutory decree proposal by asserting that "ofttimes suits are filed and divorces obtained in the heat of passion" which both parties later regret.

ROTARIANS SEE FILM ON SAVING U. S. RESOURCES

Danger of depletion of America's natural resources was depicted in a talkie film which was shown to members of the Rotary club following a noon luncheon, Thursday, at the Pickaway Arms.

The film was presented by William G. Kah, of the Ohio Division of Conservation, who declared that in order to conserve the nation's natural resources "something must be done now."

"Our coal and forests are dwindling," Kah asserted, "and our wild life protection is dwindling. Out of a total of 24 million acres of land in Ohio 22 million are now under cultivation, and our wild animals and birds are getting less and less protection."

CHIMNEY ON FIRE

Chimney blaze at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Stout, 218 Mingo street, at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, resulted in the summoning of firemen who said no damage was caused.

HARMON FIRST FAIR MANAGER

City Resident Named By Board; 1947 Fair Set For Sept. 10-13

Thomas D. Harmon, 160 West Mound street, newly elected secretary of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society, has the distinction of being the first duly appointed manager of the Pickaway county fair.

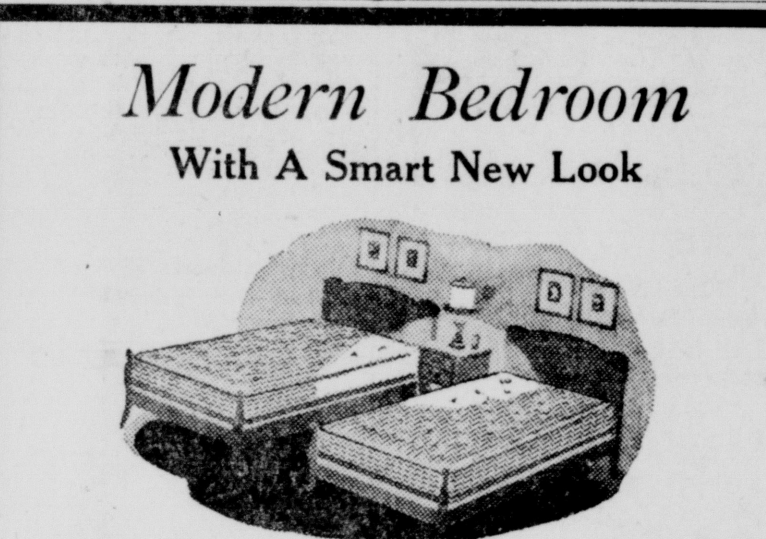

It was learned Friday that Harmon was elected secretary and named fair manager at a meeting of the society's board of directors. He succeeds Mack D. Parrett who resigned as secretary.

The 1947 County Fair, the directors decreed, will be held next Sept. 10 to 13.

Harmon, who is identified with the "Ohio Farmer", an agricultural publication, and also with farm radio programs, left Wednesday night for Pennsylvania and he is expected to return to Circleville next week.

His appointment as fair manager was voted on the recommendation of a special committee composed of Rus: C. Palm, C. V. Neal, J. B. Stevenson, Harold A. Strous, County Auditor Forrest A. Short, and County Agricultural Agent Larry A. Best.
